One of the most delightful affairs ever recorded in the annals of the junior class of Notre Dame university must needs be the Prom which was held Thursday evening at the Elks' temple. The event, an annual function of the university, which was without doubt the prettiest dancing party of the scholastic and social season was attended by more than 85 couples. The program of fourteen dances began at 9 o'clock with Steinrich's orchestra, of Elkhart, furnishing the music.

The university colors were brought into due prominence in the decorations of the stage and balcony of the auditorium. Large monogrammed blankets formed the background of the stage which was lighted by two floor lamps with shades of blue and gold panels covered with ferns. Blankets also hung from the balcony.

The programs were fashioned of tan leather bound in blue leather tied with blue and gold ribbons from which hung miniature favors. The dances were called by original names and each one bore a foreword of noteworthy cleverness all of which originality was contributed by members of the class.

Corage bouquets of yellow daisies and maidenhair fern were distributed to the ladies during the second dance. Great amusement was afforded by the novel feature which was introduced at the eighth dance. Announcement was made that the ornamental favors were also useful, each party being obliged to find a reproduction of the favor which hung from his program in order to know with whom he was to dance. Refreshments were served during the intermission.

The patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. K. K. Rocke, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Benitz, Mr. and Mrs. G. Dorais and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Tierman.

Winifred Black Writes About:
A Family Come Home

One day last week a woman and her three children got off the train at the western edge of the continent. She was a woman of middle age, with a worn face that had once been beautiful.

One of the boys she had with her looked like a statue from a Greek museum, suddenly come to life. The other boy was sturdy and laughing and full of eager interest in the new country he had come so far to see.

The little girl was brown as a berry, with cheeks like roses and great flashing black eyes. She hummed a little tune under her breath and skipped joyously by her mother's side.

But the mother was confused and anxious. Her husband had written her that he would meet her at the end of her journey, and he wasn't there.

Perhaps he had changed so that she did not know him—it was years since she had seen him, and perhaps he wore different clothes—a hat does make such a difference.

Suddenly from out of a crowd appeared a stranger. He stopped up to the woman and spoke to her in her own language.

And before they crossed the bay the anxious mother knew that "she" had made her journey all in vain, for just the day before, the husband who had sent for her died of influenza in the hospital.

He was delicious before he died, and all the time he called her name, and sometimes held out his arms for the children he hadn't seen for so many years.

And now the woman must take up the struggle of life in a strange country—a stranger.

For many years the man has been here in America, working, saving, trying to get enough money ahead for a little home, and at last, when he had it, he was called to go on the long, long journey we all must take—alone.

Surprise Upon Surprise. But he had a surprise for his wife—a little house on the outskirts of the city, all bought and paid for on a carpet in the best room, curtains at four windows and, oh, marvel of marvels, a gas stove in the kitchen.

Real beds, too, two of them, with fine soft blankets, and in the little parlor a beautiful picture of the "Blessed Lady" to smile down upon the little family.

It is like a wonderful fairy tale cake itself. Miss Michels' place at the table was indicated by a white empire basket of yellow daisies.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Winenger, 1115 Haney av., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jessie, to Cecil D. Walz, son of Christian Walz, 139 E. Paris st. The wedding will take place in early June.

Miss Vivian M. Hinckley and Robert Grove of Dowagiac, Mich., were married Wednesday morning at the parsonage of the Hope Presbyterian church, Rev. Edwin G. Meister officiating. The couple was attended by Miss Grace Townsend and Burgette Townsend also of Dowagiac. Mr. and Mrs. Grove left for an extended wedding trip after which they will be at home in Dowagiac.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Devenport of Lansing, Mich., are visiting with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fetters, 305 N. St. Louis blvd.

The Wilson Bros. Girl's club will entertain with a dancing party at the Washington hotel Friday evening. Miss Clara M. Zilly, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

The Children of Mary of St. Joseph church will meet Thursday evening at St. Joseph hall for the purpose of completing plans for the May party.

The smallest notes ever issued by the United States government were for 3 cents.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff. There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get above for one of plain ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

FRIVOLITIES Coming to the children—they have been some so long from their father that they do not miss him. But the mother—at every fresh evidence of his thoughtfulness for her and for the children, she cries.

When she opened the door of a closet and found there a coat and hat in the American style, one for her and one for the little girl—oh, it was going to be a great home-coming, and everywhere in the little, humble cottage the woman sees the laughing face of her Giovanni—who had prepared such a splendid surprise for her.

But, somehow, in all her grief and sorrow, the lines have left her face, and she looks almost young again, for is she not a bride, new come to her home in pride and love?

It isn't going to be so bad. The older boy has a job already. The mother has a promise of something to do, and little Maria will arrange for the cooking after school and—figure to yourself—there is a garden in the back of the house, and cabbages growing, and little green onions, and garlic and lettuce—oh, it is a king's garden, fit for a queen!

And the little mother has been to see where the schoolhouse is, where her youngest children will go, and it is like a palace.

Surrounded by Love. But she held up her head when she went into the door, for she is no longer a very poor woman struggling for a crust of bread for her little ones. She is rich, comfortable, independent. Has she not her own little home, four rooms and a key to the front door, and a garden full of cabbages and onions? To whom must she bend her back in servile adulation?

Poor Giovanni! If he were only here to see the pride and astonishment and the bewildered gratitude of the woman for whom he worked so long and so faithfully!

Perhaps he is. Who knows? Was it not one of his friends who found the job for the boy, and the wife of another friend who told the widow where she could get work for herself?

Ah, he built a guard against the world for his little family, did Giovanni who died—a guard of love and friendship.

I hope that he is smiling somewhere—his flashing smile of white teeth and dancing black eyes—just to think of it.

MY TIRED FEET ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Let your sore, swollen, aching feet spread out in a bath of "Tiz."

Just take your shoes off and then put these weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunions-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll glad up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another divine dip in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get, how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.
